A SHORT FILM BY DANIEL KEENAN & CASEY KEYSER

ABOUT THE FILM

Signing Singles is a short subject, dark comedy about a man and woman that meet through an online dating service for Deaf singles. The film focuses on their first date, which turns out to be a date from hell!

As you might imagine, the film is almost entirely in American Sign language. Don't worry, there are subtitles for the Signing-Impaired. We believe the film will serve as great exposure for ASL, a method of communication severely underrepresented in mainstream entertainment.

The film features a fabulous score that is designed to be felt as well as heard. It consists of classical arrangements composed by Ludwig van Beethoven after his total loss of hearing.

Enjoy the film but beware, you may lose your faith in the internet...

ABOUT THE CAST/CREW

Orlando Goncalves: As a CODA (Child of Deaf Adults) Orlando has been signing his entire life. At 23 years old, Orlando has performed amazingly in his first-ever acting part, assuming the role of Alex, a successful but narcissistic financial adviser.

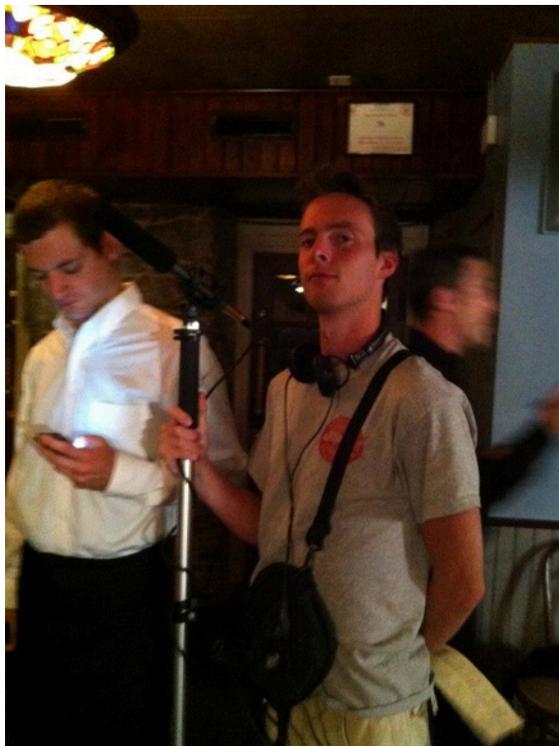

Caroline Moyer: As a current graduate student at Gallaudet University, Caroline is pursuing a Masters Degree in Social Work. Caroline plays the character of Jade, a young woman who uses her innocent appearance to mask her ulterior motives.

Daniel Keenan (Writer/Director): With a degree in Film from Maryland's Towson University, Daniel has written and directed a variety of narrative and documentary short-subject films, several of which have won local awards.

James Stribling (Director of Photography): As a current student at the Savannah College of Art and Design, James brings a creative eye to the beautiful black and white photography of Signing Singles.

Casey Keyser (Producer): Wearing many hat's, including full-time Kindergarten teacher, Casey has utilized her organizational prowess in producing this film. She has facilitated everything from budgeting to story conceptualization.
